

MEDTEC India – the showcase for first-world technology at third-world prices

Potential suppliers to India's booming medical device manufacturing sector are queuing to exhibit at this year's inaugural MEDTEC India exhibition and conference, ready to realise the potential of an industry that is currently worth around $2 billion – and, with a staggering annual growth, will be valued at $6 billion by 2015!

The two-day event in Mumbai (Nehru Centre, October 19 & 20) will showcase everything from bio-materials through to high-tech manufacturing technologies, the latest in packaging and sterilisation as well as best-in-class contract manufacturing services – in fact, everything that is needed by India's medical device manufacturing professionals to meet the country's quest "to utilise first-world technology at third-world prices", according to consultants PricewaterhouseCoopers.

In addition, the accompanying MEDTEC India Conference will provide delegates with authoritative insights into:

- How the latest developments in medical device manufacturing can be harnessed for productivity and profit
- How to develop and build world-class products, and
- How best-in-class manufacturing can improve the efficiency and effectiveness of medical device OEMs and their supply chains.

In a marketplace that already features global manufacturing leaders such as GE Healthcare, Philips and Siemens, the MEDTEC India exhibition and conference is a not-to-be-missed event for everyone involved in medical device manufacturing.
